

I'm going to the Tennessee Theatre!

Today, I'm visiting the Tennessee Theatre in Knoxville, TN.

I might be going to see a show, a movie, take a tour, or attend another event!

When I park

I'll probably park either in a parking garage, or at a meter on the street.

When I arrive

I'll probably enter the Theatre through the front doors on Gay Street. There might be a line if the show is busy, but the Theatre staff will get me to my seat as fast as they can!

Security

I'll probably go through security, which usually means walking through a metal detector and getting my bag checked if I brought one.

Tickets

I'll probably have my ticket scanned, unless I'm attending a free event.

Lobby

Then, I'll be in the lobby of the Theatre, where I can buy a snack or a drink if I want at the concession stand.

Finding my seat

If I don't want to visit the concession stand, I can head straight to the auditorium to find my seat. If I need help, I can ask a friendly staff member.

Staff

If I have any questions or need help, I can ask a staff member. Ushers wear maroon vests and our other staff usually wear black. They all wear nametags.

Restroom

If I need to go to the restroom, I can ask a friendly staff member where the closest one is located. There might be a line during busy shows.

Leaving

There may be people leaving the Theatre at the same time when the event is over. I should stay with my group and leave together.
